Apply a freshly baked cake to a cake pan, and heat up the oven. Now, if you just have a few pieces of ham and a few slices of cheese, you can assemble the sandwich as soon as you get to the store! Even if you add ingredients like mayo, mustard and lettuce, the sandwich will still be fast because it can all be made ahead of time and the ingredients can sit and warm up for a while. Did you know that some people make custom sandwiches for special occasions? For instance, I like to eat a turkey on Thanksgiving and sometimes get some pesto on it, but other times I get the little gingersnap cookies. I also want to make the dressing in advance to save time and I often buy ham in a package that has slices already arranged in it, but if I'm really in a rush, I just eat the ham out of the package. This site teaches you how to make the easiest sandwiches you've ever tasted in a few easy steps! You can even make several different variations, using the same basic sandwich ingredients. No matter what your favorite snack is, you can customize and make it any way you want. You could make it round so you can eat it with a knife or make it squarish so you can eat it with a fork or have it a little kinky to eat with your fingers. Or, you could even make it like a taco so it's like a taco but with ham and cheese and veggies all in one bite. Even if you're just in a picky mood, you can do a makeover, and make your favorite sandwich look like something else. You can also make it look like those burgers you see advertised on TV, and turn it into a cheeseburger. Even the way you fold it is different from what I do. Some people fold it into thirds, but I fold it into quarters. Slices of bread are easily torn into quarters, and I find it easier to eat, and I think you'll find it much easier to eat too. An important thing to consider when cutting your sandwich is that if you cut it into quarters, you will have less surface area. Therefore, you should think about cutting it in halves if you want it to be easier to eat. Personally, I always do a little triangle shape.
